

The Courage Family - Weary My Heart
Misc Unsigned Bands

This is a beautiful song recently written, but not yet officially recorded, by my friends in the up-and-coming band, The Courage Family. It literally gave me chills the first time I heard it. Here s a link to the video, if you want to hear what it sounds like fo real, real:

Hope you enjoy it!

Standard tuning
Capo 3

Verses (plucked):

C - G

Chorus:

C - Em

Refrain/Outro (plucked):

C - Am7 - G

Lyrics:

Verse 1:

Give them all they can drink,
Cause wine is only blood.
And we will see it fit to carry them home
With given tact.

Verse 2:

I wasn t going to wake you,
so I crept out the front door.
But I suppose you felt my ghost evade.
I guess since then, it hasn t been the same.

Verse 3:

But I ve seen the shoreline,
I know where you remain.
The light that guides the seamen home
has burned down and washed along the rocks.
I still have that letter crumpled in my coat
And I still feel the breeze in my chest.

Verse 4:

I know no other way to reach you,
I fear that I never will.

Just know that I ve loved you to the end.
My dear, I have loved you to the end.

Chorus:

Weary, my heart (3x)

A forest of trees separates you from me (6x)

Refrain/Outro:

I know no other way to reach you,

I fear that I never will.

Just know that I loved you to the end.

My dear, I have loved you to the end.

My dear, I have loved you to the end.

My dear, I have loved you to the end.
