Intro

A D x4

Verse 1

A F#m

Every day we d see them, in all the magazines

They don t look like anybody, we ve ever really seen

A F#m

They make us feel so ugly, but now it s time to stop cos

They don t look like that either, without the aid of Photoshop so

Chorus 1

Love your love handles, love your double-chin

A F#m and your receding hairline, and all your saggy skin and

see your folds and creases in a whole new way, starting today

Verse 2

Some people try their hardest, to make all our lives hell cos
They ve all got moisturisers, and diet drinks to sell
Don t have to ask permission, to be heard or seen
Don t need to make excuses, for being a human being, so

Chorus 2

Love your love handles, love your laughter lines
Cos every one s a medal, for all the happy times
Love your bumpy eyelids and your wonky nose, so everyone knows

Bridge

G Bm
All of our impefections, all our asymmetry

G Bm
They re an important part of, what makes us you and me

Am C
Who cares what someone looks like, long as they have their health

G E
Be good to everybody, starting with yourself, cos

Verse 3

We re not all supermodels, we re not all movie stars
Most of us look exactly, like what we really are We feel like we re abnormal, but that s ridiculous cos there s maybe a couple of hundred of them and six and a half billion of us

Chorus 3

Love your love handles, love you crooked teeth
Cherish that wobbly tummy, and whatever lies beneath now
Love your fuzzy nipples, and your droopy chest, and all of the rest

Chorus 4

Love your love handles, love your dimply thighs
Lanky, dumpy, scrawny, whatever shape or size
You ll find you can be happy, comfortable in, your own skin
