

There we drank brandy, strong ale and gin
                  G                                  C                                  D
She asked of me, would I give heart and hand
  G                                  C                  G
And give o'er free and easy for to jog along

[Verse]

G                                  C                                  G
Oh no, fair maiden, such things can't be
  C                                  D
For I am bound for to cross the sea
  G                                  C                  D
When a man gets married, his race is run
  G                                  C                  G
He's no more free and easy for to jog along

[Verse]

G                                  C                                  G
Look at yonder stream, how it gently glides
  C                                  D
It can go no further than it's allowed
  G                                  C                  D
It can go no further that it gets command
  G                                  C                  G
But me, I'm free and easy for to jog along
