Hold

Well you can hold your hands together all you please

Won't erase those tender tidings you endured

You were just another family member on their knees

Just a social work statistic out the door

They beat against the tender sidings of your soul

With all those pretty little hammers of control

And where they are tonight well you will never know

But I swear that I will find them now

More

It's more than just a simple question of decay

More than all those fists that beat into your door

It's more than all the shrinks that told you you're okay

It's more than anything that I have waited for

They beat against the tender sidings of your soul

With all those pretty little hammers of control

And if they even can remember I don't know

But I swear that they'll remember now

C G E
Itâ€™s just another word youâ€™ll always push away
 C G E
Just a memory you wear outside your clothes
 C G E
And it will burn down into cinders and some day
 C G D
They will burrow down to their parental holes
 C G D
They beat against the tender sidings of your soul
 C G D
With all those pretty little hammers of control
 C G D
And if theyâ€™ve ever paid a price well I donâ€™t know
 C G E
But I swear that they will pay one now

This is the first time I ve ever done out chords, so if this looks like shit please give me all the hate in the world.
