

To Zanarkand
Nobuo Uematsu

The lyrics on the right hand side are simply a translation and should not be sung. The vocal melody fits almost perfectly with the melody, or treble clef, from the manuscript arranged for piano by Asako Niwa.

I will try to put up a small youtube clip of my performance of this cover when I can, until then I hope you are pleased enough to simply configure the vocal rhythm as it feels comfortable in your throat.

[Stanza]

G#m	E
luce morientium saltu		leap into the dying
light
F#	Ebm
Fessus ab incendio;		Tired of the burning
E	Ebm
sonus sequitur culpam		follow the sound of guilt
C#m	A
sequitur, verba pacis		follow the words of peace

[Apprieve]

G#m	E	F#	B
Potest cito mutare tempora				Times can quickly change
G#m	E	F#	B
nolite pugnare contra ventum				do not fight against the wind
G#m	E	F#	B
Fiat ei sicut fluxus aqua erit				Let the water flow as it will
E	F#	C#m	Ebm	E
lapis in cordibus nostris narrat quomodo				so the stone tells our hearts how

[Conclusion]

C#m	A	B	G#m
etsi non amissa caritate				though love is lost
Ebm	Bbm	C#	Eb
Tendite; ut fideles				go onward; go sure
Eb	B	C#	Bbm
per violentiam, et quantum poenitet				far through the violence and regret
Fm	B	C#	Eb
illic invenies sapientiam				you will find wisdom

there