Worked till I froze and my face turned grey

And all of my fingers calloused and worn to the bone

And I felt like a child in a world full of men

G

Trying to capture that something again

Bm

G

Strong as an ox but slowly turning to stone

Walking away from this room dark and grey

Smoke hangs in clouds and the old echo plays

And the music is soft

And the voice it is hushed

And the boy he has loved

G

And the man he has lost

And I walk out in the rain

Bm

I felt the touch of my mother today

G

Gently pushing me forward again

Bm G
Closing my eyes but still feeling the way

Bm
And I m clutching at fingers through crumples and creases

G
I came to my senses it cut me to pieces

Bm G
cause I needed more but I was pulling away

Bm G
Walking alone with these legs made of stone

Bm Dbm Bm G
And I m almost dry and I m almost home

D
Where the photographs smile

Bm
And my place it is set

Like water would stain
