                                                                ½ step down
Intro:
F C
              Bb (x2)
         Gm
Well I remember back when I was young
        Gm
                          Bb
And king of all my days
                                          C
How I never used to worry about a thing
                             Bb
But time it turns the page
Gm
                                Dm
Cause now my head is set to spin
                                                  Вb
        Eb
And my worries start where my worries end
Chorus:
Dm
                                        Bb
                                                               F
С
And everyone s making me promises that burn like city lights
                          Bb
But I d trade every single one of them for a starry night
Where my mind don t race like a spoiled child
And I feel the warm wind blow
             Bb
                               Gm
                                      Dm
Rolling down some dark highway
             Bb
                                                    C
                                                             Bb
                                                        Gm
Far far away from this big show.

   C Gm
             Вb
                                        C
                                                                   Gm
     Bb
Well living everyday in this strange parade it gets under my skin
                                                                              Gm
It s always things you think you want the most that tend to cage you in
```

Until you make the same mistakes time and time again.
