> Easily Fooled by Pavement

This song is a b-side on the Rattled by the Rush single, although a much different and much better version can be found on the fourth (I think) Peel Session, which is included in _Stuff Up the Cracks_, where the song is called The Stucliffe Catering Song . Here goes:

В G#

Hey, do you need a reason

Is there a separate season

From which to come out of the spring

G#

I wait all summer long

And then the winter s long

Then it s longer than afterwards

I don t need a timekeeper

I don t need an interlocuter

And baby you will look a little cuter

E

Day by day

If you need a trademark for you sound

You d better look around

Treat it like a window not a door

You ll get some more

F#

Baby I could be a squirt

F#

Loosen up your magic dirt

F# E

Waiting for the excellent coming of age

В

C#

Maybe then you d squirt along E(VII) F#(IX)

Sing along, sing along

B A E(VII)

So easily fooled

B A E etc.

so easily fooled

so easily fooled

F#

So easily fooled

(THe song repeats from the beginning at this point)

Hey, I just want some respects
I might be enough to cover you up
And hold you down
Whistle you up and then run you around

Look at me once you might see that the color is red Blurring up your eyes and your head Listen to your summer when you want to go down to the beach

Coppertones and empire homes Everybody needs a home Takes centuries to build And seconds to fall

I waited so patiently for you to fall But you never fall

So easily fooled You are so easily fooled So easily fooled

That s about it. Send me any questions, comments, or whatnot.
