Many s the hour I ve lain by my window

C Am

and thought of the people who carried the burden

C Am

Who marched in the strange fields in search of an answers

C Am G

And ended their journeys an unwilling hero

Here s a song to those who are gone with never a reason why

And a toast of the wine at the end of the line

D7 G

And a toll of the bell for the next one to die

Back in the coal fields of old Harlan county Some talked of the union, some talked of good wages And they lined them up in the dark of the forests And shot them down without asking no questions

Here s a song to those who are gone with never a reason why And a toast of the wine to the end of the line And a toll of the bell for the next one to die

And over the ocean, to the red Spanish soil came the lincoln brigade with their dreams

But they fell in the fire of germany s bombing

And they fell cause no one would hear their sad warning

Here s a song to those who are gone with never a reason why And a toast of the wine at the end of the line And a toll of the bell for the next one to die

In old Alabama, in old MississippiTwo states of the union so often found guilty They came on the busses, they came on the marches And they lay in the jails or they fell by the highway

Here s a song to those who are gone with never a reason why And a toast of the wine at the end of the line

And a toll of the bell for the next one to die

The state it was texas, the town it was Dallas
In the flash of a rifle a life was soon over
And nobody thought of the past million murders
And the long list of irony(?) had found a new champion

Here s a song to those who are gone with never a reason why And a toast of the wine at the end of the line And a toll of the bell for the next one to die
