Saving Abel

I keep hearing this song and I see the tabs but I thought it would be nice to put down chords as well .... these are never really used but if you feel like singing and playing,
sounds good and is much easier.
Plus, if you want to learn to play the song, the chords give the notes a lot more meaning

NOTES:1) it is hard to tell which is correct, but the chorus either ends with Bb
,C
or a repeat of F,G
I have written what I think sounds correct but if you disagree please comment

2)If you are playing electric, use Drop D and power chords
If you are using Acoustic (like I do), play open chords

3) Strumming: Each chord goes quarter beat, eighth beat, two sixteenth beats
And the ending chords of Bb&C or F&G go eighth beat, two sixtheenth beats As you feel the beat, youâ€™ll understand what I meanâ€¦ honestly you could just strum each you want and it still sounds ok

4) There are the actual tabs in some sections; if you want to mix it up between tab and it gives the song more diversity. Otherwise, just skip the solos and riffs
