St. Thomas - Cornerman

A simple version of this song can be played with a capo on the first fret and with the following chords:

F#m            D                    E                    A
I am the cornerman, alone as I dress up
F#m            D                    E                    A
I stand here everyday, your rejections made me stop
F#m            D                    E                    A
I won t do anything to feel your wheel
F#m            D                    E                    A
I won t do anything to feel your wheel

F#m            D                    E                    A
I am the happiest, made a palace of his dreams
F#m            D                    E                    A
And when I stand right here it s not at all what it seems
F#m            D                    E                    A
You see this thing that I got here
F#m            D                    E                    A
You see this thing that I got here

D                    F#m                    D                    A
I am the consequence that you want to seal
D                    F#m                    D                    A
You know who I am, who you want to steal
D                    F#m                    D                    A
I am the consequence that you want to seal
D                    A
You know who I am

I am the cornerman, alone as I dress up
I stand here everyday, your rejections made me stop
I won t do anything to feel your wheel
I won t do anything to feel your wheel
I am the consequence that you want to seal
You know I am, who you want to steal
I am the consequence that you want to seal

You know who I am

A little more challenging without a capo, using the following chords:

Gm :355333

D# :xx1343

F :133211

A# :113331

Wonderful song, by a great norwegian artist. RIP St. Thomas.
