(repeat a second time but without the slide)
Verse 1
                       D
Patriots of the wasteland torching two hundred years
          E
                    D
Dragging my spirit back into the dungeon again
                     D
Bring back crucification cry the moral death s head legion
Using steel nails manufactured by the slaves in Asia
                E D A
                            D
You won t fall for that law and order is a baton in the rib
                 E D A
You won t fall for that just like your mommy and your daddy did
Verse 2
                         D
Blood inside a fountain pen wrote you out of life again
                              D
And who knows any better than to kick and scratch under English weather
                \mathbf{E}
                           D
>From a chain gang to the mill the mill that sits on top of the hill
                             Ε
                                         D
                                                               F.
The fog drowned towns are gonna have to fade the wrong side of the a scissor blade
Chorus 2
                            D
                                       \mathbf{E}
You won t fall for that law and order is a baton in the rib
                                   D
You won t fall for that just like your mommy & your daddy did
      E D A D
                     E D
I ll eat my hat I m gonna be sick
                    D
They own the pack while we play the three card trick, Go!
(play the intro riff again)
(then play verse 1 again)
(then play chorus 2 again)
Outro (some of the lyrics in the outro are ad-lib)
                    ΕD

Don t you remember the place

A D E D

Where we hid the ace?

Yeah not thick but slick

Now we all gotta play the three card trick!
