Say it's alright

There is a man, a crippled man, is he soldier

Can his new wife live out her life

the way he told her

Oh see her pride, I see it burning bright

Be a scream and say that's it's alright

Shake your fist and tell him it's alright

Say it's alright

Where you have been is not a sin, it's where you're going

Hurt anyone by what you've done and it starts showing

Although you can't complain about the wind and the rain

You gather down in the churchyard just the same

You want everyone to wash away the stain

It's very claim
