My first tab, so any corrections are appreciated (schneehenry83@arcor.de).
Standard tuning and no capo sounds fine. Chords needed: G,C,Em7,Am,D.

Intro: G x2

```
    G         Em7           C           G
It s there as a warning without a red light
    G               Em7         C         G
It s a please in the morning and thank you at night
    D           Am          C                   G
It s a version of myself, I show it to nobody else
   D               Am        C             G
The Me only mirrors know is coming out to say hello
              Em7        C      G
I could always hide and let it go
          Em7           C      G
If I never tried, I d never know
    G           Em7         C           G
That somewhere is here, that sometime is now
    G       Em7       C       G
That no disappeared and became a somehow
    D           Am          C                   G
It s a version of myself, I show it to nobody else
   D               Am        C             G
The Me only mirrors know is coming out to say hello
       Em7                        C
I won t pick you up and let you down
       Em7                          C
I won t throw you in and let you drown
   Am          C        G
Open the door, I want you to see
   Am              C          G
Open the door, I m giving the key
        Em7              C
We could talk from now to Halloween
        Em7                     C
Disappear and throw sticks in the stream
   Am          C            G
Open the door now we don t need words
   Am          C          D
Open the door but not to the world
      Am         C                   G
Only to myself, I show it to nobody else
    D                    Am        C                       G
```

The girl hanging on the wall, I couldn t recognise at all
```
   D                    Am        C                    G
```
The Me only mirrors know is coming out to say hello
```
   D                    Am                C                    G
```
Cos I wanna let you through, I ll keep the real me for you
