

Beneath The Eyelids
The Mars Volta

I m taking this off of a live performance on a youtube video.
The rhythm for the most part is simple but the F chord switches to 7/8 so just watch for that.

The link for the youtube video is

Am C G F Am
Do you remember how you wore that dress?
Am C G F Am
It slipped my sight beneath the eyelid
Am C G F Am
Do you remember what you said to me?
Am C G F Am
What cause has given you the right to stray?
Am C G F Am
And then you re living to muster a taste
Am C G F Am
The clocks are ticking fast with every breath

Chorus:

Dm Am
Since we ve been wrong, I ve been poured away
Dm Am
Since we ve been wrong, you will never ever know me
Dm
What took you so long?
Am
I m not sure of the way
Em
But I hold it as

Just one more time

you still amass

Am C G F Am

The next verse follows the same chord stucture like the first verse:

One day your rain will come wash away
The earth that held us was no island
I have become unbroke inside this skin
I ll find a way out through those eyelids
And all the days become of cast away
I seem to think I don t belong here

Chorus

The end of the chorus goes to the bridge which is Am, Em, F

Am Em

On top along here

F

I should have stayed

Am Em

What folds inside

F

Becomes empty

Am Em

The walls between us

F

Won t ever break

Am Em

Should seal it shut

F

It grows empty

Then the chorus until the end. The last chord is Am.

Out of laziness I didn t tab the second verse but you should get the idea of it just by listening to the first verse and then place the chords where you hear it in the song.

Tabbed by Dan V.

PS: I better not see this tab ripped off and put on other sites without giving me credit for it.
