

The Actor

The Moody Blues

This is in my opinion the best written romantic song on this album, enjoy!

D      xx0232

C x32010

G 320033

Am x02210

F 133211

Em 022000

[Verse 1]

D                      C                      G

The curtain rises on the scene,

D C G

With someone chanting to be free

D C G

The play unfolds before my eyes,

D                      C                      G

There stands the actor who is me

[Verse 2]

D                      C                      G

The sleeping hours take us far,

D C G

Through traffic, telephones and fear

D                      C                      G

Put out your problems with the cat,

D                      C                      G

Escape until a bell you hear

[ Chorus ]

Am

Our reasons are the same,

G

But there s no one we can blame

F

For there s nowhere we need go,

E

Am

When the only truth we know comes so easily

C

G

Am

The sound I have heard in your hello,

G                      F                      Em

Oh darling, you re almost part of me,

F

Em

Oh darling, you re all I ll ever see

F Fm C

Ah . . .

[Verse 3]

D                    C                    G
It s such a rainy afternoon,
D                    C                    G
No point in going anywhere
D                                    C                                    G
These sounds just drift across my room,
D                    C                                    G
I wish this feeling I could share

[Verse 4]

D                    C                    G
It s such a rainy afternoon,
D                    C                                    G
She sits and gazes from her window
D                    C                                    G
Her mind tries to recall his face,
D                    C                                    G
The feeling deep inside her grows

[Chorus]

Am
Our reasons are the same,
G
But there s no one we can blame
F
For there s nowhere we need go,
E                                    Am
When the only truth we know comes so easily

C                    G                                    Am
The sound I have heard in your hello,
G                    F                                    Em
Oh darling, you re almost part of me,
F                                    Em
Oh darling, you re all I ll ever see
F Fm C
Ah...
