Again, I forget the key but it s pretty much a blues progression. Pick your favorite key. The (D-D#-E) part is the riff that he plays.

Title: Orange Ball of Hate Band: Mountain Goats
Album: Zopilote Machine
Time: 12/8 (on the record)

E (D-D#-E)
when i hear the screeching weather vane E in the wild wind and the hissing rain
A
i know that one of us, i m not saying who,
has got rocks in her head B
as the rain comes through the open window
but you don t think so
i sure do love you
i sure do love you

when i notice that the radio is broken i see you standing there in the doorway soaking the water drizzles off of you down to the floor and i say that i don t want to live in new england anymore some flower petals stick to your skin i grab hold of your hip, and i pull you in when the building establishes control when the thunder from the north begins to roll down our way i know i ve been right all along and you start singing that stupid children s song you think i don t know it but i just don t feel like singing it sure do love you

i sure do love you
