

Slide Away
The Verve

This song is a bass type of song (were the bass punches most of the harmony) and guitar play mostly lead parts. So I have tabbed the bass part. It has a rhythm guitar, but they don't play thru the whole song, holding most of the harmony on the bass, keyboard or ebow (wich is my case), so a made a arrangement. I hope you all like this - it s my favorite Storm in Heaven song.

Keyboards or ebow lines (w/ a lot of reverb)

The rhythm part of the verse, as well the intro, can be played on A and G all the way thru, but i have included this fig. so it don t sound so boring if you are playing without a bass player. Just play it in some bars, alternating it with the A G pattern. Feel free to add funky (a la James Brown) rhythm figs., and to deconstruct this patern.

After that theres a quiet part, Mc Abe plays some single notes w/ a lot of delay, and in the outro he plays something high, but too much blurred for me to tab - just play some improvisation over the intro theme. In the chorus just play the riff 1.
