

C G7 F C
Her face was crystal, fair and fine

F C G7
Her breath was morning, her lips were wine

F C F
Her eyes were laughter, her touch divine

G F C
Her face was crystal, and she was mine.

If only she could feel my pain
But feelin s a burden she can t sustain
So Like A Summer Thursday, I cry for rain
To come and turn the ground to green again.

If only she could hear my song
 Bout the empty difference tween rights and wrongs
 Then I know that I could stand alone
 As well as they, now that she s gone.

Repeat 1st verse

Intro: D - F#m - G - A - D

D A/C# G D
Her face was crystal, fair and fine

G F#m Hm A
Her breath was morning and her lips were wine

G D Hm G
Her eyes were laughter, her touch divine

A G D...(intro)
Her face was crystal, and she was mine.

If only she could feel my pain
 Feelin' s a burden she can't sustain
 So Like A Summer Thursday, I cry for rain
 To come and turn the ground to green again.

If only she could hear my song
Bout the empty difference tween rights and wrongs

Then I know that I could stand alone
As well as they, now that she s gone.

Her face was crystal, and she was mine ...

#-----#