LOOK AT THE MOON
by Trip Shakespeare off the album LULU

Note: This may be close but not perfect. The bridge section is probably pretty accurate, but doesnt sound very good unless you are listening to or playing the solo, which I have not tabbed. There were some places where it was a toss-up between G and Em, and the passing (D) noted in a couple of places might be in there but Im not positive.

D                    E                    Bm                    F#m
Intro: Look at the moon
D                    E                    Bm                    E
Look at the moon
A                    E                    Bm
Verse1: Would you look in my eyes for a moment
A                    E                    Bm
Let me see if I can say so long
A                    E                    Bm
Funny I cant smile at the freedom that I wanted
G                                    Bm                                    E
And I cant smile and try to lead you on
A                    E                    Bm
Verse2: Would you mind if I cry for a moment
A                                    E                                    Bm
Cause I loved the days when you were mine
A                    E                    Bm                    (E)                    F#m
Honey I cant lie you wont see me any longer
D                                    E                                    A
Let me kiss your sweet lips one more time
D                    E                    Bm                    F#m
Chorus: Look at the moon
D                    E                    Bm                    A
Look at the moon
D                    E

Hey now you know that I

A F#m

Dont want you to see me cry
