LYRICS

--[VERSE]

Should I decide it s true,
that you would leave if given half the chance to go,
and I d be left here on my own,
to find myself in bed,
wishing everything that changed would be the same.

--[VERSE]

The room still looks like you,
It s a mess and all the pictures on the shelf,
are dusted off by someone else,
to keep me company,
I haven t told her that your thought still lingers on.

--[CHORUS]

F#                      B                      Bb              F#

Everyday s another chance to bury my regret,
F# B G#m B F#
everyday s another chance to make it but I can t, but I can t.

--[VERSE]

I saw you on my phone,
on a contact list that isn t up to date,
would have changed it with more time,
that I require to,
rid my mind of all the freckles on your face.

--[VERSE]

And reconcile to what?
the ring I bought you is buried deep within the ground,
behind the swing where we first met,
and memory only serves,
to remind of all the bruises you forgave.

--[CHORUS]

F# B Bb F#
everyday s another chance to bury my regret
F# B G#m B F#
everyday s another chance to make it but i can t
but I can t, but I can t

--[VERSE]

should I decide it s true,
that you d return if given half the chance to come...
but it s not true, bet it s not true, but it s not true...
