LYRICS

-- [VERSE]
Should I decide it s true, that you would leave if given half the chance to go,
and I d be left here on my own,
to find myself in bed,
wishing everything that changed would be the same.
-- [VERSE]
The room still looks like you,
It $s$ a mess and all the pictures on the shelf,
are dusted off by someone else,
to keep me company,
I haven $t$ told her that your thought still lingers on.

everyday $s$ another chance to make it but $I$ can $t$, but $I$ can $t$.
-- [VERSE]
I saw you on my phone,
on a contact list that isn $t$ up to date,
would have changed it with more time,
that I require to,
rid my mind of all the freckles on your face.
-- [VERSE]
And reconcile to what?
the ring $I$ bought you is buried deep within the ground, behind the swing where we first met,
and memory only serves,
to remind of all the bruises you forgave.
