VERSE 2

Copper sits outside the Quick Mart scratching lotto tickets in his squad car
Taking a break from pointing his radar at drunk drivers on the interstate
Three scratch offs and one for the big game but he still can t retire today
But that crackhead who was standing right behind him can cause he bought the one that got away

VERSE 3

Fellow asked me and my buddy to drive a car across the country
Wasn t too sure but I sure needed the money me and my friend we said "okay"
We popped the trunk at a rest stop found somebody in there starting to decay
Last month s big game ticket in his pocket too late for the one that got away

Girl majors in history with an English minor she s got her notebook sitting right beside her
To pay tuition she s working at a diner serving drunk drivers on the interstate
She still dreams of the one with the bright blue eyes who told her she d be modeling someday
But he ran out on his check and he didn t leave a tip "goddamn" she says "the ones that get away"
