Intro

=====

Bm

Verse

=====

Bm      G                      Em      A
I don t really feel I m on my own
            Bm      G                      Em                      A
Because nobody here ever leaves me alone
            Bm                              G
To blink now would be wrong
                    Em                              A
I might define you in this song
            Bm                              G                              Em                      A                      Bm
And I don t know if you d really like the things that I ve become...

Verse

Bm      G                              Em      A
I don t think I ll write another act,
            Bm                              G                              Em                      A
The first one was too long and now in actual fact,
            Bm                              G
All my moneys in this play
            Em                              A
But the actors ran away
            Bm                              G                              Em                      A
Now I m working on a rewrite that retells it all for one...

Chorus

In the battle between book smarts and fright,

Verse

Em A

But you know there s only one of us who ll make the cast for good.

F#m G# C#m
And carved into my door is how you like me now,
F#m G# C#m

And written on my wall is now you like me how?

F#m                      G#                                      C#m

And carved into my door is how you like me now,

F#m                      G#                                      C#m

And written on my wall is now you like me how?

The little bass riff in the intro and that switches back from the chorus to the verse is:
